

CHICAGO GUN VIOLENCE PREVENTION CONFERENCE

The We Are Our Own Medicine Gun Violence Prevention Conference offers a collaborative, in-person experience that leverages unique, cross-sector expertise to strengthen our community through education, training, and partnerships and provides a platform to exchange knowledge and refine our safety initiatives.

More than 500 people are expected for this year's conference, with breakout sessions giving voice to our youth, families impacted by gun violence and funders sharing best practices for grant writing and violence prevention programming.

As subject matter experts, panelists will share industry best practices in business development, health care, education, housing, food systems, transportation, economic development, law enforcement and government services and detail how those interconnected sectors play a significant role as part of a multi-faceted approach toward violence prevention.

We aren't just talking the talk, we're taking intentional action to equip our communities to make a difference.

When our communities thrive, we all win.

WE ARE OUR OWN MEDICINE

THIS IS OUR TIME

We Are Own Medicine is a community-led collective of extraordinary change-makers who are committed to leverage our collective impact, resources and influence to end violence and disinvestment in historically underrepresented communities in Chicago.

Our mission is to empower our communities with the knowledge, strategies and resources they need to implement real-world solutions that will transform our neighborhoods back into the safe, thriving communities we deserve.

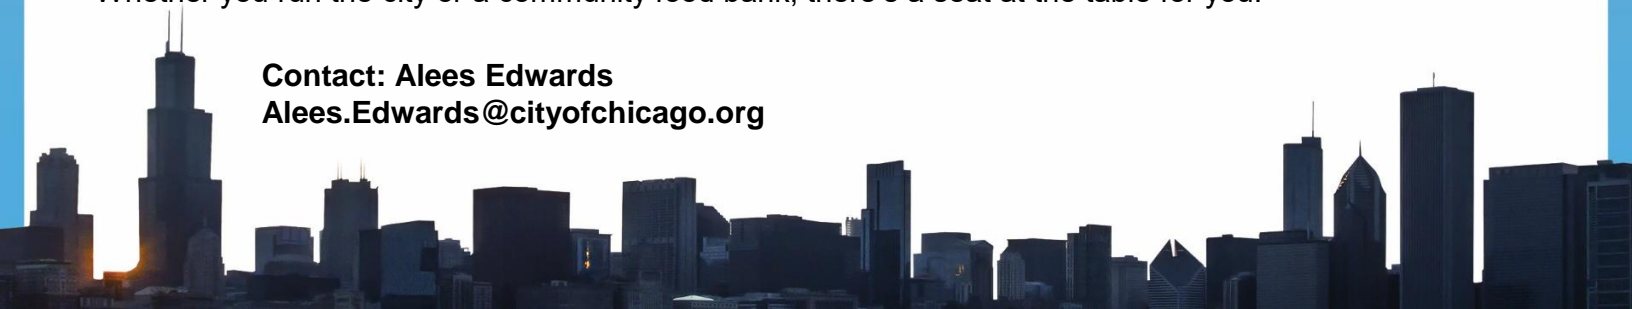

Our collaborators are invested. Our neighbors are invested. Now, we need you invested.

We keep our ear to the ground to identify and activate our most valuable community assets - our people, our businesses, our leaders and community stakeholders - into a unified front, with a common goal of safe & prosperous neighborhoods.

We put the right people in the room - the strategists, activists, educators, philanthropists, operation specialists, and government officials/policy makers - to create and implement actionable and sustainable safety strategies for Chicago.

Whether you run the city or a community food bank, there's a seat at the table for you.
